Partner terms

Museums platform · Version 1 · 9 October 2026

These terms apply when a museum partner creates an account from an invitation sent by the platform. By creating the account you confirm that you have read this document and accept it for yourself and for the museum you represent.

1. The account

The invitation is for the email address shown on the registration page. You choose a password and keep it confidential. Do not share the account. The platform may suspend or remove access if the invitation is revoked, the account is misused, or these terms are broken.

2. Your museum's content

You are responsible for the text, images, maps, audio and other material you add or publish. You confirm that you have the rights needed to use that material, and that it is lawful. Visitors read and hear what you publish. The platform stores it so the guides can be shown and played.

3. Prices

A platform superadmin sets the price and currency of each guide. Museum admins can see those prices. They cannot change them. Visitor checkout uses the price that is current when the visitor pays.

4. Visitors

You keep the museum's public details accurate, including the description, opening hours and contact information shown on the welcome screen. Published guides are offered to visitors through the platform.

5. Acceptable use

Use the admin only for museums you are invited to. Do not attempt to access another museum's account, interfere with the service, or upload unlawful content.

6. Acceptance record

When you accept these terms, the platform stores your email and the time of acceptance. That record shows which version you accepted. Creating an account is possible only after you accept.

7. Changes

The platform may replace this document with a later version. The version shown in the registration window is the one that applies to a new account. The date and version number on the first page identify it.

8. Contact

Questions about these terms can be sent to the platform operator, Wman, via wman.com.
